Teaching through human relationships: The inspirational education testimony of Chris Aspinall

Teachers who love to teach do more than teaching

Some teachers conceive education as the mere transmission of knowledge. For them, it is only essential to be in the classroom and teach the students the content of the syllabus. This couldn't be further from the truth. The reality is that students have needs, sometimes they become unmotivated or they simply do not even know how useful what they are addressing in class will be for them.

Teachers who love to teach do more than teaching. They discover new ways to make knowledge digestible, give it useful meaning, and understand the needs of their students. These education professionals put their efforts into creating an environment in which they inspire their pupils. Although they know their limitations and cannot always achieve the whole set of objectives with all their students, they do their best to leave a mark on the majority of their learners.

Chris Aspinall: A teacher that does more than teaching

Chris Aspinall is from Blackburn, England. He has been teaching internationally for around 15 years. His experience goes back as a Campsite Guide & Kids Entertainer at Eurocamp (2006-2007), Kindergarten Teacher at Denla Kindergarten (2008-2014), Reception Class Teacher at Storytime Preschool (2014-2017), Kindergarten and Grade 1 Teacher at Saint John Mary International School (2017-2020), and Head of Boarding at Canadian International School of Thailand (2020-2021). Currently, he works as the Head of Year 2 at Rugby School Thailand.

In his classroom, Mr Aspinall holds a steadfast belief that genuine connections with students are the cornerstone of successful learning. The methodology is clear in his own words:

"I am deeply committed to fostering meaningful relationships built on trust, respect and empathy. By understanding each student's unique strengths, challenges and interests, I try to create a supportive and inclusive learning environment where they children feel valued and understood." For him, through these connections, it's possible to cultivate a sense of belonging, but also inspire a passion for learning that extends beyond the classroom.

Building relationships with children is the key to learning, according to Mr Aspinall. Once children know that you are there for them, care for them and want to help them learn, then it opens a world of possibilities. Actually, the American Psychological Association supports this idea as "Improving students' relationships with teachers has important, positive and long-lasting implications for both students' academic and social development."

MS in Innovative Education & Teaching (MSIET) from EIU-Paris has revolutionized my approach in Education & enhanced my teaching proficiency. It's a pivotal tool for educator development.

Educator, Head of Year2
Rugby School Thailand

The next step for an inspiring teacher: Graduate studies at EIU-Paris

Besides holding a Bachelor of Education in English from Northwest Samar State University (Phillipines), Chris wanted to go even further and improve as an education professional. So, he starting searching on the Internet and found about the European International University, Paris. By pursuing one of our stellar graduate programs, the Master of Science in Innovative Education and Teaching (MSIET), he embarked on a journey to revolutionize his approach to education.

After getting Distinction Marks on this graduate degree, he commented on it: "This program from the EIU-Paris equipped me with the tools, knowledge, and skills necessary to adapt to the ever-evolving landscape of education. Through exploring innovative methodologies, emerging technologies, and progressive pedagogies, I was empowered to create engaging and effective learning experiences for my students."

This qualification not only enhances teaching prowess but also opens doors to diverse career opportunities in educational leadership, curriculum development, and instructional design. Ultimately, it positions teachers as forward-thinking educators who are ready to shape the future of education.

EIU-Paris, a home for teachers all around the world

There are those who have from the very beginning the clear goal of being teachers, and there are also those to whom life gives the opportunity (as if by accident) to become educators. For either of them, it is clear that when starting this adventure there are many commitments involved. The obligations of a practicing professional require great efforts, as do personal responsibilities.

Chris Aspinall, EIU-Paris 2024,
MSIET, Educator,
Head of Year 2
Rugby School Thailand

Establishing meaningful connections with students fosters an environment conducive to learning. As advocated by the American Psychological Association, strong teacher-student relationships yield enduring benefits, enhancing academic and social growth.

Embrace continuous learning, prioritize student-centered approaches, and maintain professionalism. Strive for excellence in both content delivery and interpersonal communication. Adapt to evolving educational landscapes with resilience and innovation.

Chris Aspinall, EIU-Paris 2024, MSJET, Educator, Head of Year 2 Rugby School Thailand

A Master of Science in Innovative Education and Teaching (MSJET) can equip teachers with a powerful blend of skills and knowledge to improve their teaching practice in several ways

- Deepen understanding of educational technology
- Develop stronger instructional design skills:
- Refine data analysis and assessment practices:
- Foster innovation and creativity:
- Stay current with educational trends:

Overall, a Master of Science in Innovative Education Technology can empower teachers to become more effective educators by equipping them with the skills to integrate technology strategically and thoughtfully into their teaching. This can lead to a more engaging and impactful learning experience for students.

“A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops.” – Henry Adams. This quote perfectly captures the lasting impact Mr. Chris Aspinall has on his students. His dedication in teaching goes beyond the classroom, and his lessons will stay with the pupils forever.

The Oath and the Open Road: A New Chapter in Healing Awaits

The Start of a Transformative Journey

From a bustling corporate career as a geophysicist to becoming a clinical hypnotherapist, Sreemanti Gijare's journey has been nothing short of a roller-coaster ride. Graduating from the prestigious Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur, India marked the beginning of her transformative journey. After spending nearly 1.5 decades working for large corporations, she found herself at a crossroads, yearning for a deeper sense of purpose and meaning. Her first corporate job with Schlumberger, the best-paying oilfield company, taught her to fly and see the world in a new light. However, despite the financial freedom and professional growth, she felt underutilized and yearned to bring value to others.

Discovering Her True Calling

Sreemanti's quest for her true calling led her to quit her corporate job and embark on an entrepreneurial journey. She started an online retail business, which was both challenging and rewarding. However, her inner voice kept nudging her towards a different path. After much introspection, she discovered hypnotherapy, a field that was unfamiliar to her but resonated deeply with her inner calling. She pursued rigorous training and completed all six levels of hypnotherapy in a record time of five months.

The Power of Hypnotherapy

Hypnotherapy opened a new world for Sreemanti. She continued and finished her Masters in Transpersonal Regression Therapy thereafter, which took almost two years. All these tools allowed her to tap into the subconscious mind, revealing the underlying emotional and psychological factors contributing to physical ailments. From physical to psychological to psychosomatic issues, all her clients were getting results. She witnessed firsthand the transformative impact of acknowledging and addressing these factors. From allergies and anxiety to chronic pains and hormonal imbalances, Sreemanti has successfully treated a wide range of issues, achieving a remarkable recovery rate of approximately 95% to 97%. She slowly started becoming a specialist in reversing chronic conditions. Words started to spread and without any advertising she started getting clients across the globe. So this worked both face to face and even online.

“

What I love most about being a clinical hypnotherapist is witnessing the incredible transformations that my clients undergo. It's deeply fulfilling to help people overcome their challenges and achieve a greater sense of peace and well-being.

Overcoming Skepticism and Building a Client Base

Despite the effectiveness of hypnotherapy, gaining acceptance was a significant challenge. Many people, including her own sister, were skeptical about the power of hypnotherapy. However, demonstrating its effectiveness through successful treatments eventually converted skeptics into believers. Leveraging social media and word-of-mouth referrals, Sreemanti managed to build a diverse client base across different countries.

Embracing Change and Uncertainty

Sreemanti's journey has taught her valuable lessons about embracing change and uncertainty. Transitioning from a stable corporate career to an entrepreneurial journey in hypnotherapy was daunting, but it taught her resilience and adaptability. She learned to trust the process and seize new opportunities, leading to profound personal and professional growth.

“My clients had been calling me Dr. Sree for a while, and I used to correct them, but now I can proudly embrace it I am so excited !
Thank You EIU-Paris

Sharing Her Journey and Inspiring Others

Sharing her journey has been therapeutic and inspiring. Writing about her experiences helped her process her emotions and gain a deeper understanding of herself. Her story has the power to inspire and guide others facing similar challenges. Sreemanti hopes her journey encourages others to pursue their true calling and embrace the transformative power within themselves.

Conclusion

Sreemanti Gijare's journey from a corporate geophysicist to a clinical hypnotherapist has been incredibly fulfilling. She has been honored with accolades such as Best Health Management Consultant UAE 2022, Gulf Achievers Award — Best Clinical Expert 2022, and rated as the best Hypnotherapist in Dubai in July 2022. This transformation is something she never thought possible, and she will always be grateful for it.
